Notes and News.

TRUSTEES.—The Trustees regret to report the loss to the Trust of Dr. awes Hicks who died at Cambridge on February 16th last. Dr. Hicks appointed a Trustee in 1899, and had thus served on the Board for ears, a term of service which has been equalled or exceeded on only a occasions in the course of its long history. At the General Quarterly ing in March the warmest appreciation of his services was duly recorded ributes were paid to his interest especially in the work of the Library n the promotion of theological and philosophical learning and scholarship gh the educational activities of the Trust.

Dr. Hicks was Professor of Philosophy in University College, London, -28, and Emeritus Professor from 1928 to the time of his death.

The vacancy caused by Dr. Hicks' death has been filled by the appoint- of Mr. J. Leslie Harwood, son of the late Rev. James Harwood, himself ustee for 36 years (1893–1929).

The Rev. E. G. Lee, Editor of The Inquirer, has also been appointed a tee in place of the Rev. J. M. Connell, whose resignation for reasons alth was recorded in the last number of the BULLETIN.

AUGUST VACATION.—The Library will this year remain open for a part ugust, and a restricted service will be maintained.

From August 1st to 9th, and 25th to 30th, the service of the postal rtment will be carried on, correspondence will be attended to and books be exchanged, though a certain amount of delay must be expected; Reading-room and Lending Department will be open from Tuesday to y each week during these periods, from 10 a.m. to 1.30 p.m.

For the two middle weeks of August, i.e. August 11th to 23rd, all depart- s of the Library will be closed.

WAR CONDITIONS.—The Library has again been fortunate in coming gh the heavy spring raids without serious damage. The Reading-room Lending Department are open as usual, and the normal postal service is maintained.

Notes and News.

Divinity Scholarships.—At the recent Divinity Scholarships examion the successful candidates were Horton M. Davies, M.A., B.D., of sfield College, Oxford; Dudley E. Richards, B.A., of the Unitarian ege, Manchester, and J. Emrys Davies of the Presbyterian College, marthen, the first two being awarded Scholarships of the value of £85 per um for two years, and the third a Scholarship of £85 for one year.

Exhibitions for one year were awarded to Peter R. Ackroy, B.A., B.D., ew College, London; W. Spiers, M.A., of the Baptist Theological College cotland; J. Eric Evans, B.A., of Westminster College, Cambridge, and P. C. Jones, B.A., of the Presbyterian College, Carmarthen.

War Conditions.—The Library has shared with the rest of London the unity from air raids of the summer and autumn. The Reading-room and ding Department are open as usual, and the normal postal and other ser- s are being maintained so far as an attenuated staff permits.

The Old Grafton Street Building.—Not many of our readers will ember the old building in Grafton Street, Gower Street, which housed the rary from 1873 till 1890. This building (which had been incorporated in le's Shop) was totally destroyed in the spring raids. The exterior was or example of mid-Victorian dissenting Gothic, and the proportions of the n library had been entirely altered and spoiled by the division into two rs. But some of our older readers may remember and perhaps look back n something of regret to the fine entrance hall and wide stairway leading to the huge, church-like room, which extended the whole length of the floor, giving a feeling of space which the present premises can scarcely ise. There the writer of these notes, as a child, crept about by day in t awe, under Miss Darley's eagle eye, and poured over the illustrations in e's Book of Martyrs—and at night, after library hours, played hide and with his sister amongst the dim shadows of book-cases and tables.

In connection with this now vanished building there is a problem, with possible solution of which I should appreciate assistance. Attached to n of the corbels which supported the main roof-timbers of the great room a small wooden shield, on which were painted the initials of a dissenting thy. These initials were almost invisible and quite illegible from the r of the room; but the division of the room into two floors brought them in eye-sight. Some years ago I copied them. Eleven out of the twelve plain sailing and offered no reasonable doubt. But there was one (I will say which) about which even the late Alexander Gordon did not feel quite . I give the initials and invite solutions. No prize offered.

Comenius Tercentenary.—In commemoration of the tercentenary of visit to England of John Amos Comenius, the great Czech theologian and cationalist, a small exhibition has been arranged in the Reading Room. are proud and fortunate to be able to produce from our own shelves a itable show of early editions and translations into English of Comenius's ks; and we have to thank Dr. Fitzgibbon Young for the loan not only of e interesting recent editions, but also for a very beautiful reproduction of rtrait of Comenius, which hangs by the show-case.

Donations.—Two valuable donations have been received since the last e of the Bulletin. We have had the privilege of selecting, under bequest, y volumes from the library of the late Mrs. Stuart Moore (Evelyn erhill). These are all included in the present number of the Bulletin, tly under the heading "Devotional and Practical Theology."

Mr. Kingsley Martin has presented about two hundred and fifty volumes n the library of his father, the late Rev. Basil Martin, formerly a member he Board of Trustees. These have not yet been catalogued.
